TAX LEVY REDUCED $20,000 BY BOARD

Appropriation of Last Year Almost Cut in Half This Year By the Supervisors.

Rock county's 1915 tax levy shows a reduction of $20,000, according to the appropriation asked for on Saturday by the committee in charge of compiling the general fund. They asked for an appropriation of $50,000 for this year. In 1914 the sum of $70,000 was voted by the board for general purposes.

The county school money for the year is placed at $40,516.80. The soldiers' relief fund is named at $7,200, which is a mill tax, figured on the equalization of the county, $72,000,000.
An appropriation of $41,146.59 was asked for by the various towns of the county as the county's share for highway and bridge work. The sum of $1,500 was voted in addition to an appropriation of $6,000 to tide the county school department over the year. Previous boards had made the school year from January to January, but in reality it extended from March to March. Last year the money was voted for a year's time, but will run out in January of next year. The additional $1,500 is meant to be used during January, February and March.

LIFE OF DISCIPLES STUDY TO CHRISTIANS

EACH OF THE TWELVE CHOSEN FOR CERTAIN ABILITY BY CHRIST.

REV. PARISOE'S TEXT

First Must Become Disciples and Then Apostles—Twelve Were to Perpetuate Jesus After His Death.

Speaking on "Representative Christian Character," in his morning sermon, Rev. George Edwin Parisoe, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, gave many logical reasons for Christian association in a strong address.
The text was: "And He appointed twelve that they might be with Him, and that He might send them forth to preach." He spoke in part as follows:

"There are at least two reasons why we should make a personal study of the twelve chosen representatives of Christ. For as we study the Christian characters of Christian men whom Christ selected to His intimate fellowship—to become His associates—we are certain to learn something about the Christian character of the Master Himself.

"Carlyle gives us the other reason.
Great men taken up in any way are profitable company. We cannot study any great Christian man, however perfectly, without gaining something from him. When we study the Apostles of Jesus, we find not only simply faith and good men—but the greatest of men.

"In the earlier periods Jesus labored single handed. His miraculous deeds were confined for the most part to a limited area. His teaching was essentially of an elementary character. By the time that the twelve men were chosen, the work of the kingdom had assumed such dimensions as to require an organized division of labor.
The principles of modern times, the time the teachings of Jesus Christ were beginning to be of a deeper and more elaborate nature. His gracious activities were taken on a wider range.

"It was by accident that Jesus appointed the twelve apostles, no more less. That there was a large number of eligible men whom Jesus could have easily selected for this high office, as evidenced from the fact that shortly afterwards Christ found seventy fitted to be sent forth to preach
His Holy Gospel. The twelve chosen were not selected by obvious symbolic reasons. Every Jew in a modest knew what the choice meant and trembled. There were rough, troubled days before them. Days of gloom and apprehension lay before them.

"The heads of the twelve tribes of Israel represent the different types of the ordinary humanity. They classify the different types of the ordinary Christianity. They represent the Christian character, as influenced by Christian principles and Christian faith. They may be fairly marked into three separate groups. First, the born leaders were Simon, Andrew, James and John, two sets of brothers,
the only brothers in the apostolic company. It is evident that they were masters of the fisherman's trade, and of their business—natural leaders of which Christ took them for service in His kingdom.

"The born workers were Philip,
Bartholomew, Thomas and Matthew.
They could not receive anything without looking around it, seeing it on all sides. Such men have their missions in the world. Faith is always in danger of becoming superstition. The born workers are always compelling us to look around as the grounds of our faith.

"The born workers were James,
Thaddeus, Simon the Canaanite, Judas Iscariot. Men who carry out in every practical detail the work arranged for them by their leaders. No conceit in their hearts, no not doubters. But men who have something to do,
found themselves in the work.

"Because the marked variety and the force of the individual characters are influenced by the Gospel, they developed in Christ's service.

"There seems to be three reasons, at least, for calling the twelve. That they might be with Him. There is nothing more touching in the record of our Lord's life than His hunger for human sympathy. He longed for loving and trustful friends. With loving gratitude, in the upper room, the Lord said unto His disciples: 'Ye are they who have continued with me in my temptations.'

"Thus being with Christ, the disciples witnessed His life, making them
fully qualified to attest of His purity, power and love. But the more important reason for the calling of the twelve was that Christ needed them and their help in His work. He needed aid to preach to the multitudes and they were called to preach the Gospel of the twelve contains supreme confidence of the thoughtfulness of Jesus.
At the time Jesus called them, the shadow of the cross was already in air cold, heavy, upon the Master's face.

heart. He knew that the prophet's words would be fulfilled. He knew that he would despise, reject Him and finally put Him to death. Looking back on the face of Jesus, Jesus selected twelve men who might be Him, who verifying the truth of his beneficent power, could thus equipped, perpetuate and extend His work.
Most men seek to continue and extend their influence by the truth which they teach, in writing. Plato wrote his republic. Aristotle, his philosophy. Dante, his poem on purgatory. Shakespeare, his King Lear.
Milton, his Paradise Lost, but Jesus never wrote a single line. Instead,
He chose twelve men to understand the dynamic power of His love, by close association.

Christ's greatest gift to the world
was not His words, great and inspiring as they are, but His greatest gift was the Gospel. It is not needed as much as what He said and what He did.

He was obliged to be content with fishermen, publicans, former zealots, energetic men of Galilee. He was content with His Choice. These men became the Master's apprentices. At the end of their apprenticeship, He sent them forth to preach the apostles.
Discipleship must come before apostleship. We must first learn of Christ, before we can tell others of Him. We are taught to think that we have been called to God, but to what have we been called? Called into fellowship with Christ. Yet, primar-ly—that is not the end of our calling.
We are called to be with Him, that we might learn of Him; to become His disciples—that He may send us forth as apostles. We are called that we may be sent.

"The greatest of the disciples
may learn of Jesus and become apostles, a useful witness for Him.
Little men are needed, as well as the great men—for the human nature is one-sided. Being peace-loving, we have their peculiar virtues, gifts, with which they can do some things better than their forward brethren. If you place Christ as your hero, then your sole desire is to be like Him, and know, you are then becoming one of the glorious company of the apostles.

"We are saved by Christ, let us seek to save others. The best evidence of the world that we have learned of Christ, is our joy in telling others of His wonderful love. Keep men's responses before them, let truth unleash them. Speak the Gospel into them. Prove to the world your apos-tleship and thus prove you are a representative Christian character.

"I am proud of the Janesville &
Madison Traction company," said
Pickhardt, when arrested. "The road
owes me $200,000." The count on which he was arrested charged embezzlement of $800, but it is alleged
he is in debt to the company for $1, 500.

Pickhardt's career in Madison was as uneventful as it was brief. He was employed in the spring of this year, arranging for publicity, conferring with members of the city council, establishing offices in the Washington
Hotel and bought an automobile.
His dream was to develop a road from Madison to Janesville, and around the lake to Blooming-Grove, where his proposition impetus was given by forming a subsidiary company called for extension of the traction company's tracks to serve land owned by those of the Madison company.

Pickhardt Discharged.
Dilatory tactics caused a withdra-
val of financial backing for the road.
Then the railroad commission refused to grant a license. Pickhardt was finally discharged, for reasons not announced. He left Janesville several months' rent to owners of the furniture store and to a local furniture store for office fixtures.
Pickhardt is said to have traveled in San Francisco under the alias of George Brown.

MADISON PEOPLE HUNTERS' VICTIMS

Mrs. Leelle Lamb Struck By Shot
Aimed By Reckless Hunter North of Janesville.

The lives of thirteen Madison people were endangered by three reckless youths armed with shotguns several days ago on the road between Janesville and Janesville, when the hunters carelessly discharged their weapons at a fleeing rabbit, striking six members of the auto party with the bullets.

Leelle Lamb, 603 West Washington avenue, Madison, was the most seriously injured of the six, being struck behind the ear with several small shot. She bled profusely from the wound and was rushed to Edgerson for medical attention. Others struck by the spent shots, but not seriously injured were: Mrs. E. E.
Vedenbeck, her mother, Mrs. Joseph Vine, and her sister, Miss Katherine Steine; Mrs. S. H. Young and Leland and Francis, sons of Mr.
Lamb. In the case of Mrs. Steine, the shot penetrated her clothing and made impressions in the skin but did not lacerate herself. The others were simply stung by the spent bullets.

The party was en route to Janesville and were within ten miles of that city when the accident occurred. Mr.
Lamb and others of the group gave chase and caught the three youngsters, making their names for further investigation.

Mrs. Lamb is not seriously injured and is able to be about.

LOCAL BOYS STAR AS COLLEGE ACTORS

Bradley Conrad and Stanley Metcalf
Take Part in Minstrel Show
Given at Lawrence College.

Bradley Conrad and Stanley Metcalf
of Janesville were actors Friday night in a minstrel show given by the managers of the various fraternities and societies at Lawrence College, where they are attending school. The show was the first of the season, and was given at Lawrence and their troupe were the rage of the evening.

Mr. Conrad was in the group representing the Theta Phi fraternity, and Mr. Metcalf was in the group of the Delta Iota fraternity. The acts were said by their friends to be the most original given.

Ballots were cast for the best group performance and the most original individual. Although an announcement of the result of the contest will not be made for a week yet, the popularity of Mr. Conrad and Mr. Metcalf last evening places them at the head of the list of contestants, and they are both considered, by their friends, likely winners of the prize. The affair was one of the social events of the college year, and afforded opportunity for the fraternities and individuals to show their school spirit.

Mr. Conrad is a son of William Conrad, and Mr. Metcalf is a son of George
A. Metcalf of this city.

FREEZING WEATHER ARRIVED SUNDAY

Temperature Took a Decided Drop
and Cold Winds Appeared.
Autumn, which was lolling in the lap of summer since the first of beginning, suddenly slid off on Sunday, and landed in the grip of Boreas.
A snowfall on Sunday, during which an inch of snow covered the earth,
ushered in the regime of winter.
The snow was accompanied by a fall in temperature. At noon the mercury had dropped to 31 degrees,
where it stayed.

At midnight the temperature dropped to twenty degrees, according to the thermometer figures. It was twenty-nine degrees at eight o'clock
Sunday night.

Despite the balminess of the weather,
however, the snow of Sunday was not the first of the season. On Sunday, Oct. 8, a trace of snow fell. The last since 1899, when a trace snow fell on Sept. 28. In October, 1914, there was also a trace of snow.

No more snow, however, is predicted by the weather bureau for the next few days. Today, it was said, it was said, would be clear.

PROMOTER REPORTED IN JAIL AT FRISCO

Gustav Pickhardt Arrested in California for Alleged Juggling of Bond Receipts.

Gustav Pickhardt, free lance promoter and erstwhile railroad builder,
who for a brief time was connected with the Janesville-Madison interurban company and had offices here in Janesville, is in a San Francisco jail for juggling receipts from sale of bonds of the traction company, according to dispatches.

Pickhardt, charged specifically with failing to account for $1,500 alleged to have been collected by him
for the company, was removed from active bond sales and confined to a cell
man. The complaint was filed six weeks ago by E. H. Uehling of Watertown, who is interested financially in the company. A search for Pickhardt, which extended from coast to coast ended in his capture yesterday
at San Francisco.

Says Road Owes Him.
"I am proud of the Janesville &
Madison Traction company," said
Pickhardt, when arrested. "The road
owes me $200,000." The count on which he was arrested charged embezzlement of $800, but it is alleged
he is in debt to the company for $1, 500.

YALE SHOWS FIGHT AND BEAT TIGERS; WISCONSIN SWAMPED

Reversal of Form for the Blue, Who Play Harvard Next Saturday— Illinois Loses to Gophers. By Strikes.

And Yale came back. Fighting desperately after the handicap of a disastrous preliminary season, the old Blue tore into the Princeton Tigers Saturday with a powerful football team that was just finding itself, and registered an unexpected victory by the score of 13 to 7. As a team the Tigers were superior, but the old time "bull dog" spirit and Yale luck, with individual stellar playing, turned the tide of the playing.

This was the one surprise in the football schedule Saturday. The rest of the games went as expected. Harvard, using second string men in the most of the time, beat Brown 18 to 7. The climax of Yale's wonderful revival comes next Saturday, when they attack against the mighty Crimson. Yale was improved seventy per cent under the coaching of Sherrin and will be in the game against Harvard with their last ounce of strength to win over their time honored rival. Statistics of the Princeton game were all in favor of the Tigers, for they gained four times as much ground as did Yale, but the breaks of the game went to the fighting victors. The Princeton team, the equally weak team, battled to a 0 to 0 tie. Neither team had punch enough to score. Cornell showed a slight reversal of form when Washington and Yale scored three touchdowns on them when the eastern champs ran up a total of 40 points.

In the west results were doped out in general before hand. The powerful scorers of Minnesota rode rough shod over Chicago and eliminated them from the conference, the score being 20 to 7. The Maroons held the Gophers to a 7 to 7 tie during the first half and then, before the stone wall line of Minnesota. The heavy Gopher backs plowed through the tired Maroons for three touchdowns. The Chicago backfield had trouble in getting away because of the impetuous defense that the Minnesota aggression presented. Minnesota plays Wisconsin at Madison next Saturday and it looks as if the Badgers were in for a bad trimming.

By playing hard, consistent football, the speed eleven of Coach Zuppke, Illinois, walked away with Wisconsin by the score of 17 to 3. Wisconsin did not have a show, as they were threatened to score once and a field goal was their best effort.

On the other hand Illinois failed to show the exceptional brilliancy expected for with their wizard backfield it was assumed they would play a flashy, open field running game. Instead they bucked the Badger line and end, and got stuck in on clever fake plays. Pogue played for a short time, and during his stay in the game he had the Badger ends running in circles. The Wisconsin team plainly showed poor coaching for time and again their play failed to work smoothly through error of the players. Illinois went into the game with a spirit of win, and like Yale fought to the last ditch, but had all the odds with them.

Indiana beat Northwestern 13 to 6. Nebraska captured the Missouri valley title when the line plunging of their backs brought a 33 to 0 win over Kansas. The Nebraska team is a mighty one and would give the conference nine an interesting duel.

Notre Dame had an easy time with Creighton, winning 42 to 0. Washington, the unbeatable team of the west, beat St. Louis 13 to 7. In the state Marquette beat Beloit 13 to 0, playing a game of forward passing. The first score was a lucky one and took the vim out of the line. City college, Whitewater won the southern championship from the Milwaukee normal by the score of 14 to 7 in a hard fought duel. After being scored on while water came back playing straight football and scored twice in the latter part of the game. Lawrence lost to Madison 14 to 7. When a fumbled punt resulted in a score, St. John's, who have been airing their championship claims quite extensively, walloped St. Norbert's by the lopsided count of 27 to 7. The cadets must have had a running race with their weak rivals. Madison High won from Milwaukee West Division 14 to 10. La Crosse normal lost its claim to state honors as Fairview beat it 19 to 0. Riverside High of Milwaukee retains the lead for the Milwaukee title, as they beat North Division.

JANESVILLE MAROONS WIN FROM THIRD WARD

Yesterday afternoon the Janesville Maroons won two games of football, one from the Sisters school, by forfeit, and the other from the Third ward team, by a score of 6 to 0. The Maroons were outwitted by the Third ward bunch, but by some fast playing they were able to get one touchdown. David McCullough refereed the game.

FREDDIE WELSH MEETS CANADIAN AT WINNIPEG

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Winnipeg, Manitoba, Nov. 15.—Freddie Welsh, lightweight champion of the world, will meet John O'Leary, claimant of the Canadian lightweight title, in a twelve round contest here tonight.

If Jess Willard defends his heavyweight championship in New Orleans, it will be the first time since Corbett knocked out Sullivan that the Crescent City has seen a title bout in this division of pugilism. The California bank clerk sent the great John L. to the floor for the final count in the twenty-first round of their great battle at New Orleans September 7, 1902. The contest, the fought under Marquis of Queensbury rules, marked the passing of the heavyweight bare-knuckle gladiator and the debut of the knight of the padded mitt. Though after a period of almost twenty-five years, during which fistiana has witnessed the rise and fall of Sullivan, Corbett, Fitzsimmons, Jeffries, Johnson and Willard, the Marquis of Queensbury championship is to return to the scene of its birth.

Here's another argument for putting a curb on ball players who storming under the name of some recognized club. Steve Yerkes, canned by the Boston Red Sox and then a Fed, is a member of the "Phillies," who have been bringing the game into disrepute by hippodroming through Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

PLUG CHEWING A WHOLESOME HABIT

In No Other Way Can You Get All the Richness and Flavor of the Leaf

"SPEAR HEAD" BEST CHEW

Many prominent physicians declare chewing to be the most wholesome way of enjoying tobacco.

"I began chewing some years ago," said one, "and I soon found that it is the only way to get the benefit of all the rich juices stored up by nature in the tobacco leaf. I refer, of course, to the plug form of tobacco, which is the most natural and the cleanest form.

"Chewing good tobacco like Spear Head makes the salivary glands more active, which in turn has a beneficial effect on the whole system. Add to this the sweet, mellow, delicious flavor of a chew of Spear Head, and you have the highest possible degree of tobacco satisfaction.

"I mention Spear Head because I have found that this brand is exceptionally pure, being made in a factory that's run strictly according to pure food rules."

Spear Head is made of sun-ripened Burley, which is acknowledged to be the richest, mildest, finest flavored tobacco leaf in the world. And it is produced by the latest processes, which develop the quality and luscious flavor of the choice Burley to the supreme degree.

A chew of Spear Head has a wholesome relish that is not found in any other chewing tobacco. Try a 5c or 10c cut.

EDGERTON H. S. ELEVEN WINS FROM STOUGHTON

Edgerton, Nov. 15.—The football game at Stoughton Saturday proved to be a very exciting game. Neither side seemed to have any advantage, and but for a drop goal kick from the twenty-five yard line Stoughton would have been completely shut out. They tried to drop kick again, but the kick was blocked and in the scrimmage the home boys succeeded in making a sensational run, scoring the only touchdown made in the game, making a final score of 3 to 7 in favor of Edgerton. About three hundred accompanied the team to Stoughton, there being nearly as many Edgerton people at the game as there were Stoughton people. The Stoughton band furnished music at the game.

MORE SEATS ADDED FOR THE DEMOCRATS

Out of the Ninety-Six Senators, the Democrats Have Fifty-Six.—Automatic Voting Device.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Washington, D. C., Nov. 15.—A "cherokee strip" of Democrats in the Senate is another new condition resulting from a Democratic majority. For the first time in a generation, a Democratic overflow will find seats on the party dividing line, the center aisle. The strip is not representative of the Republican side. Of the ninety-six Senators, the Democrats have fifty-six. Extra desks have been placed in the Democratic section. The incoming members are to be in the rear. Senator Underwood of Alabama, former House leader, will be in the back row, between Hollis of New Hampshire and Lewis of Illinois. By the way, it's "Hamilton"—not James Hamilton or even Jim Ham—now, officially. He has retained the pink wheelers but dropped the front name.

On the Republican side, Senator Sherman of Illinois gets seat No. 1 in the front row right beneath the clerk's desk. He is slightly deaf, successor to Root, will be in the last row, between Harding of Ohio, also a newcomer, and Curtis, of Kansas, a returned Republican veteran.

In the House, the conditions of Democratic supremacy are different. There the Democrats will have a scant majority of about thirty. Last year they had over 100. Neither will the House members scramble for seats. It's a free-for-all, daily take-your-choice arrangement there, except for the party leaders.

An automatic voting device, to displace the long, tedious oral roll call of the 435 members, may be tried in the House this session. Flashlights on a huge noise board, with the members voting by turning keys automatically recording their votes, are planned.

DISCOVER ROCKFORD MAN DRANK POISON TO TAKE HIS LIFE

Oscar Ellison, Bewitched With Insane Idea, Attempts to Kill Himself at Hospital.

Oscar Ellison of Rockford, Illinois, who was found in an unconscious condition on Good Friday Saturday noon, is now at the police station recovering from the effects of two ounces of carbolic acid solution, which he drank with the intent of suicide.

Chief of Police P. J. O'Brien has notified the Rockford department of police to come for the man or have some person take him in charge, as it is feared that Ellison will make another attempt to take his life.

When taken to the Mercy hospital Ellison was unconscious until five o'clock in the afternoon when he regained consciousness. He could not speak or use his mouth and his face showed that his mouth and throat were terribly burned by the acid.

Medical treatment soon aided him and questioning brought out the fact that the man was violently insane.

Saturday night Ellison arose from his cot, stationed in the hallway, near the kitchen, and threatened to kill himself. Attendants' attention to quiet him but he persisted in making threats of taking his life. During the night he came near assaulting one of the nurses, and violent pleading that he obtain a knife with which to kill himself.

During the night he was taken to the county jail, where he was placed in an empty cell. The hospital authorities did not wish to have him as a patient in his violent stage of mind and it was deemed advisable to have him locked up in the jail.

Ellison is possessed of the delusion that the Prince of Sweden is seeking his life and that the Swedish government desires to deport him as a spy.

Frederickson, who was taken to the county jail for safe keeping, Ellison is insane friend not to be taken to Sweden.

Sunday three friends of the unfortunate young man were in Janesville and reported that Ellison had been taken to the county jail for safe keeping, and that he was almost extinct as a result of exposure and the effects of the poison. From what can be learned, Ellison is not married and recently came to the United States from Sweden.

Police investigation showed that Ellison came to Janesville on the ten o'clock interurban car Friday night. From the station he went directly to a drug store and purchased a solution of carbolic acid, thought to be about two ounces. It was found he then went to a saloon and left his overcoat and then went directly to the drug store and purchased the acid.

JOHN DALTON GURT BY C. & N. W. ENGINE

Crossing Watchman Escapes With Life at Milwaukee Depot on Saturday Evening.

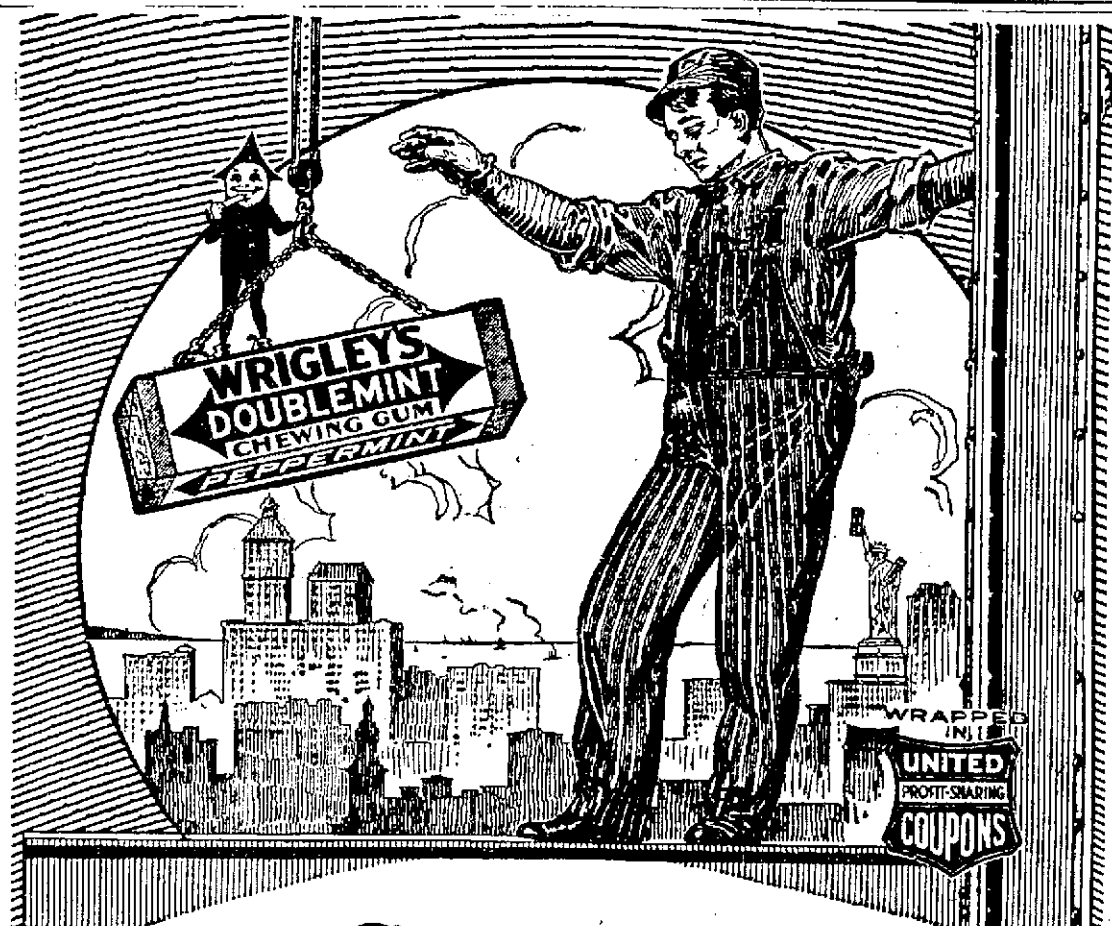

John Dalton, veteran "lifeguardman" of the High street railway crossing, had a narrow escape Saturday night from death. Today he is confined to his bed, suffering from a fracture of the face and a band, and complaining of excruciating pains at the lower extremity of the spine.

It was just about 7 o'clock when the passenger train from Chicago to Milwaukee occurred near the Milwaukee depot. Mr. Dalton was midway between the Northwestern and Milwaukee right of ways at his accustomed station to escort pedestrians safely across the tracks.

A Northwestern switch engine had made several trips back and forth between Academy and Jackson streets. The Milwaukee's passenger train from Chicago to Madison was just pulling into the depot when a lady, apparently bewildered by the bright lights and moving of trains about her, stood directly in its path.

Mr. Dalton rushed forward to get her out of the danger zone, and then backed off the track and directly into the Northwestern engine. Fortunately it was just moving.

Steady!

Whatever our toil—indoors or out—on big jobs or little: we need patience, tranquil nerves, strength of body and presence of mind.

We need keen appetites and good digestions. We need to keep mouth and throat moist and refreshed, the teeth clean and breath sweet. In other words, we need WRIGLEY'S!

For there's where this wholesome, flavor-lasting, impurity-proof refreshment is worth its weight in gold. Yet it costs but a mite.

MEN WITH CAPITAL TAKE UP NORTHERN WISCONSIN FARMS

Homeseekers With Means Appreciate Possibilities of Vast Tracts—Letter From Minnesota Man.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Madison, Wis., Nov. 15.—That homeseekers with means appreciate the advantages of upper Wisconsin, and feel it profitable to assist in developing the fertile, unoccupied lands of that region—is becoming more and more apparent. Men able to pay more and buy improved land in older, well-settled communities, are purchasing cheaper unimproved lands of this state, and continual evidence of this is being brought to the attention of the immigration division of the Wisconsin department of agriculture.

An example of this is seen in the following letter received Saturday from a citizen of Minnesota:

"I now have a beautiful tract of land in the northwest corner of Burnett county. I am preparing to improve some of this land and want to do it in an up-to-date manner, so when complete it will be the very best laid out, and well adapted to the dairy and stock business, including cattle, hogs and horses. Will you kindly lend me assistance from the state agriculture college and lay out the farm in fields and also barns and all other buildings which I would need and want on a farm of 640 acres? The house would not be so large or expensive; that can be altered after the location is made. The cow barn should be the principal building and where the most money put in and made most complete and all the other buildings can be made subservient to it. Would want to furnish a vegetable and small fruit garden."

"Now I want everything laid out right before I begin and work to the plans. The cow barn to be the principal building. I fully believe I have the making of one of the finest farms in Wisconsin. I have set aside land enough for three farms—180, 360, 360. If my plans do not miscarry this will be accomplished in the end."

"Kindly help me out and send me the plans and about the cost of each building."

P. G. CHOPPE.

It is doubtful if any state is better equipped than Wisconsin to assist such prospective settlers by furnishing plans showing in detail the construction of farm buildings, how to open up the land, what crops to grow, and how to grow them.

That so large a number of prospective settlers are interested in developing their land along live stock lines, first brushing, removing the brush and sowing to clover, indicates that the present estimated $100,000,000 valuation of dairy products will be surpassed in short order.

Many investors with capital of the class represented by P. G. Choppe are investing in northern Wisconsin land. Because of their advantage of ready capital, they are getting results rapidly. Purchasing land at fifteen dollars an acre, they are enabled by their capital to make this land worth $200 an acre.

The settlers with small capital, however, are no less successful, although more time is required for them to get the results attained by the wealthier settlers.

Orfordville News

Orfordville, Nov. 13.—Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Anderson went to Madison on Saturday morning to spend a day or two visiting with friends there.

Dr. S. W. Forbush went to Janesville on Saturday morning to assist with an operation on Henry Skogen, at Mercy Hospital.

A. E. Tomlin transacted business at Stoughton on Friday afternoon.

Mr. Winslow of Iowa is spending a few days in the village with friends.

The "Norwegian supper" served at the parlors of the Lutheran church on Saturday evening was well patronized. The supper consisted in part of numerous old fashioned dishes which were popular with the mothers and grandmothers in the village and showed that they still possessed rare skill in preparing. A very pleasant evening was spent. At the close of the festivities Rev. Thorson of Janesville delivered an address on the "Influence of Christianity on Modern Civilization," which was greatly enjoyed.

Rev. J. N. Brown of Beloit occupied the pulpit of West church on Sunday morning and that of the Lutheran church at Broadhead in the afternoon, the pastor being absent.

The Bone Valley church will hold a bazaar at the church parlors on Thursday evening, November 18. Ladies are urged to bring baskets with dinner. The society will furnish free coffee.

Mrs. Q. E. Overstrud went to Janesville on Friday and entered Mercy Hospital. She is reported as doing well.

Huston, secretary of the United States department of agriculture, has asked officials of the Wisconsin livestock breeders' association and each of the agricultural papers circulating among the farmers of this state to send representatives to the conference on hoof and mouth disease to be held at Chicago on Nov. 29-30. Problems arising out of the recent outbreak of this disease will be considered at this meeting and it is expected that a more effective system of combatting the disease will be worked out. UNIVERSITY STUDENTS IN MILITARY DRILLS

New Equipment for Drills at Madison Make University Rank Among Best in Country.

While the nation is talking preparedness, there has been developed at the University of Wisconsin a military corps surpassed by the military departments of no other college. Better equipped, a higher standard of drill, and unusually fine equipment have combined to put the student cadet corps in the distinguished class among the university military departments.

The university corps at Madison is the only student body that has a wireless company. Their radio outfit consists of two sections of thirty foot masts, and the signal company is trained to send either wireless or telegraphic messages. Two new Colt automatic machine guns, the latest gun type, have been added to the military department this year.

The cadet regiments last spring numbered 1,400 men, the fourth largest body of student troops in the country. There were twenty-four companies, divided into six battalions, and six majors. These units, in addition to a student band of 50 pieces, and a second band of 30 pieces, were welded into two regiments commanded by two colonels.

The regiments at the University of Wisconsin are equipped with modern rifles of the Springfield type, model 98, having a velocity of 3,200 feet per second. They are the same model as the 500,000 rifles stored in government arsenals.

Target practice is religiously followed on the indoor range, but little practice was held on the outdoor range because of complaints of neighboring farmers. This target practice throughout the year is held under the supervision of the officer detailed by the government. Each cadet is required to discharge a specified number of shots at targets. His score is tabulated and the result determines whether the cadet shall take added instruction in this line or not. The cadets of Wisconsin made higher scores than those prescribed by the national guard for their qualifications. The national guard requires 60% to qualify, and the cadets shot an average score of 74%.

The standard of shooting is to be raised this fall and it will be necessary for every cadet to make 80% or better before qualifying. Silver medals will be awarded to all those making 90% or better. Familiarity with the gun is taught in this practical manner as well as the principles of marksmanship.

Lieutenant P. G. Wrightson, U. S. A., is commandant of the cadet regiment at present. His detail to the university is of four years' duration, and will end in December, 1916. His term of office was held over an additional year because of his excellent work in the university cadet corps.

WALKER WHITESIDE.
In Israel Zangwill's great drama, "The Melting Pot," to be shown in six dramatic acts at the Apollo Tuesday and Wednesday.

AT THE APOLLO.

Mary Pickford Tonight.
"Esmeralda," by Frances Hodgson Burnett, author of "The Pretty Sister of Jose," and "The Dawn of a Tomorrow,"—what names to conjure with! And added to these great names of successful plays and gifted authors, the unparalleled name of Mary Pickford as further and complete guaranty of the unsurpassable beauty and appeal of the photo-production of this famous dramatic success, produced by the Famous Players Film company on the Paramount Program, at the Apollo tonight.

And as if these starting names were not sufficient to suggest the importance of this feature attraction, such favorites as Ida Waterman, Fuller Mellish, who distinguished himself as the poor fellow in the famous "The Great Photo-Spectacle," "The Eternal City," and Charles Waidron, the lead of the recent dramatic triumph, "Daddy Long-Legs," who made his screen debut in a recent Famous Players feature "When We Were Twenty-One," form the conspicuous members of the supporting company that, together with the transcendent art of Mary Pickford, make "Esmeralda" one of the notable feature productions of the year.

"Esmeralda," with its appeal to the finer senses, its depiction of the sweet comforts of farm life and its exposition of the dangers and shams of the city, was a great play, and is a great photo-play. The author's two former plays produced by the Famous Players Film company in Paramount pictures, were both unusual successes. The third should even exceed the popularity of its predecessors.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

The $1,000 Prize Play.
Imagine the result of a nation-wide contest for a motion picture play with a prize of $1,000, the winning story handed to Ralph Ince, one of the ablest directors in the whole industry, with instructions to select any players he wanted, and to spare no expense on the production. One would easily guess that Anita Stewart and Earle Williams would be selected for the leading roles. Imagine, then, the sort of a picture that would be the result. In this way you can get an idea of what to expect in "The Sins of the Mothers," which comes on Thursday and Friday of this week. Anita Stewart has never been seen to better advantage.

Knowing this, you must surely plan to be at the Majestic on Thursday or Friday.

AT THE PRINCESS.

Closed While Remodeling.
The Princess Theatre will be closed today on account of the extending and enlarging of the building. The carpenters have been working for some time making the theatre considerably larger, in order to lower a portion of the floor it was found necessary to close the theatre for one day.

When finished the Princess will be a model little theatre with an improved screen. The pictures of course will be larger because of the long projection. Each row of seats will be lower than the row behind, making possible a good view from any part of the house. The work will not be fully completed until the first of next week.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

A Red-Blooded Romance.
"Captain Alvarez" has the same appeal to the ordinary American that "Gaustrak" has, and that is saying much. The hero is the same sort of a courageous, dashing, chivalrous American, the heroine is just as charming with her Spanish piquancy, and the atmosphere of political intrigue is just as fraught with adventure.

"Captain Alvarez" is a dashing story, a story that will carry you through the whole of its six reels with an intensity of interest. Wm. Taylor gives the hero's role a vigor that will make you love him, and Edith Storey, the well-known star of "The Island of Regeneration" and "The Christian," handles the part of the petulant Spanish girl to perfection. Mr. Taylor, by the way, performs some feats of horsemanship that have rarely been equalled.

The whole is put on in a big manner so characteristic of Vitaphone, and the atmosphere of the southern republic is perfect. You will enjoy every minute of the picture.

Performances will begin promptly at 2:30, 4:00, 7:30 and 9:30 tomorrow and Wednesday, and the admission will be a dime for all.

NOTICES ARE SENT OUT ON PAVEMENT COSTS

Hammerlund this morning to property owners on South Bluff and Wisconsin streets on the amounts assessed for the paving and other improvements recently completed. The returns on the notices whether the property owners desire to make the payments when the certificates are issued, or to pay in five years' bonds, is to be made on or before the 15th of next month.

The Heart of Night Wind

A Story of the Great Northwest

"The right law!" he said. "Yes, Sletz is right. And a man would do it if he had an incentive great enough—even a sane man of today—with the average honor. And he would hold up his head if he was of the strength to do the thing at all."

For a moment Miss Ordway sat silent, regarding him intently. "Good!" she said at last, "then you think I may go on without danger of overdrawing my character?"

"Unquestionably."

She dropped her eyes, toying with a bone-handled fork lying near. "Thanks, Walter," she said at last gently. "I shall go on with more confidence. It is a daring thing to make my hero do—but the woman loves him in spite of a thousand crimes—above and beyond them."

Her heart was beating so fast that her white throat fluttered spasmodically at the soft hollow at its base and she knew that she took a chance. She knew also, as Sandry rose abruptly and left the room, that he had felt the steel, for his face was gray again.

In the silence of the little south room she stood long, staring into the yellow flame of the lamp on the stand. Then, suddenly, she covered her flushed face with her hands and shuddered.

"If I should blunder!" she gasped, "my God! If I should fail to win him after all! Oh, Walter, Walter—heart of my heart!"

CHAPTER XXII.

The Price of Peace.

Important events have a way of striking from ambush, without warning. So did the telegram which found Sandry idling among these women, so strangely mixed up with his life, who held together for his sake, though wide apart as the poles. It said simply, "Come at once. Mr. Wilton Sandry failing rapidly," and was signed by the famous specialist.

When the young man read it his face went white as a swooning woman's and the hands that held the yellow paper shook uncontrollably.

His lips set with a deadly illness and he stared unseeing out across the slough.

"The incentive!" triumphed Poppy away. "but oh, why must it take him from me just now! I hate it!" and sudden anger and disappointment flared for an unguarded moment in her eyes.

But the face of Sletz between its braids had suddenly fallen into the mold of grief, faithful reflection of Sandry's own, and she slid off the porch to step softly, unconsciously near, with her hands clasped in distress.

An hour later the owner of the Dillingworth gave a hand to Poppy and Sletz simultaneously, looked from one face to the other, saw Love in the black eyes and the blue, and felt a pain at his heart that he could not explain.

Ma put a motherly touch on his shoulder and said a word that was simple and earnest and tender as her great heart. John took his last hurried orders, and Sandry was off in the car he had telephoned for to Toledo.

Weak and sad and torn by emotions, he watched for two whole days the great West slide by his Pullman window—that wondrous West whose subtle charm had laid abiding hold upon his soul. Then the middle West raced past—Montana, Idaho, with their bleak stretches of loneliness, and he roared into Chicago on the Transcontinental, only to shoot out again on his race with death. He saw that East begin to come back to him, and for some strange reason it had lost its charm. Was this what he had yearned for, there among the mighty hills? These packed and crowded cities, with their noise and clangor, their trailing smoke, their hurrying multitudes and their dirt-stained, towering piles of stone and mortar?

Wearily he closed his eyes and gave it all up, turning his sick thoughts upon the benign old face of his father. So at last he reached New York, looked with odd unfamiliarity upon its safety and life, and hurried to the great old house in Riverside drive.

Breathless, weak, scarce able to stand for the strain on his right limb, Sandry paused with Higgins hovering adoringly around him in the dusky, draped hall before the magnificent room of the ivories and browns.

There was the ache of tears in his throat, a terrible horror of what lay behind the closed doors, an unendurable anguish of abnormal love, but he squared his shoulders, lifted his head with his old, jaunty air and entered. He even called a smile to his lips.

In the high-canopied, copper-posted bed lay the old financier. The fine, old face with its pleasant tracery was marked by the hand of the Last Accountant, but it was still the face of a great and good man, still held its benignity, its kindness and courtliness.

Now, with Sandry's step, a mighty gladness fell upon it, a light of joy that was all-illuminating.

"Walter!" he cried out in a voice of momentary strength, "Oh, my son! My son!"

And with a shudder to the boy's ears came an echo, "Absalom!"

He dropped beside the bed, gathered the white head in his arms, and rocked to and fro as women rock in anguish.

Presently Mr. Wilton Sandry pushed his son from him with falling hands and gazed upon his face with the starved eyes of long-denied affection.

"My boy!" he whispered brokenly, "my life's crown, the point of my whole success!"

The long, white hands quivered on Sandry's shoulders. The bright, blue eyes began to light marvelously.

"I am at the end of my journey, Walter, and it has been a splendid journey—a grand journey—and I thank my Maker for it! I have been blessed beyond most men, beyond my deserts. Your mother—she was above price—I cannot estimate her by any method. She was my one love and I have never thought of another in all my long life. May you find her equal, my son, a pure woman with a heart of the gold of undying love. She was an Estabrook—the best blood in the country. She left me you—a son such as only she could leave—and you have proved worthy of her life. In character, intellect, uprightness—oh, what a son you are!"

The great specialist, standing in the curtained alcove of the window behind the empty wheeled chair, turned anxiously. Little Doctor Gentry came forward, hesitating.

"Not too much, Mr. Sandry," he warned, "too much exertion, you know."

The dying man looked up with that glowing fire in his keen eyes.

"Have I not waited for this hour?" he smiled. "Have I not held back the sickle of the Reaper for this one hour? Let it be full, my friend—this is my son—my son, of whom I am proud as Alexander of his conquered world—and I have him here. Let it be full!"

And Sandry, his heart like stone in his breast, smiled back with the same blue fire of keen eyes.

"Old chap," he said lovingly, "we're a pair together—I owe what I am to you, sir—you have been my pattern."

"Tush, boy! You got your nature from your mother. Only your excellent grip of finance, your youthful ability, your toying qualities," here there was a ring of unmistakable pride in the words, "that I do flatter myself I bequeathed you, and it is a good gift, a great gift when it goes with squareness, uprightness, and this you have to a supernatural extent. That was my last worry—the uncertainty as to whether or not you possessed it—the gift of ability. You have removed it. I am at peace."

Sandry, looking full at the speaker, turned a dull crimson from brow to throat, but every nerve in his body thrilled with a reckless triumph.

"My own success has been my third great blessing. How great a blessing, a satisfaction, a pride—a weakness, I may say, I am afraid to think."

"That I builded so well and held my completed structure through the continual changes and dangers of business life has been my rounding-out, the pleasant finish to my career. Now, boy, it goes to you—the fine, great structure of my fortune."

He ceased and smiled in an unbounded pride which proved his words and was as balm to Sandry's soul.

The son bowed his head in courtly acknowledgment of a magnificent gift, and his father went on:

"I have let you make your start with the bare purchase price of your undertaking, struggle along on insufficient capital, fight to make your ends meet—oh, I know how it is in a new business!—to prove you. Now the way is open and you will go far. I am—at peace."

With the last sentence there came a catch in the strong voice, a space between breaths. The specialist stepped quickly forward.

"Mr. Sandry," he said warningly, but nothing could stop the last uprush of that indomitable spirit, was last flame of joy and hurrying communion for which he had lingered with one hand on the open gate of eternity.

"No!" he went on—"this is my hour. I am full of triumph. I'm singing—my own song, Walter—and I'm ashamed to say it is all on two notes—love—that's all right—and pride. Pride, my boy—pride of life—of your mother's love—of you—and—of my financial success!"

He halted a moment and the specialist hurriedly gave him a few drops of some powerful stimulant.

"Oh, if I could have been here sooner, sir!" groaned Sandry.

"Hush! You couldn't. And I have—you now. That's sufficient. Just your dear face, boy—so like—here—to be with me at the last moment."

The gasping was more pronounced and Sandry, his face like ashes, raised his hand to his forehead, and the young commissioner was uneasily searching his offices for the two letters and a missing account book. He did not faintly suspect that the last time he had seen them was during the visit to Salem of the charming new acquisition to the "ring." In fact, some of those days were still shrouded in a nebulous haze of mystery—red wine and red lips and a heady infatuation.

But things were approaching another change in Daily's lumber camp. One day in late July Sandry wrote several letters and Poppy Ordway, leaning familiarly over his shoulder, reached out a hand for them.

"I'm going up to the forked stick," she said languidly, "and I'll take them."

The dainty fingers were all but trembling with eagerness, for she saw that one of them was addressed to John H. Musseldorn, at a town in New Jersey. There was none to observe her on the sunny Sletz road behind the low growth of spruce, and when she stroled down the little meadow again toward the cook-shack, that particular letter lay safe inside the bosom of her dress.

She went straight to the south room, entered and closed the door. Her hands trembled violently, but there was no compunction for what she was about to do in her heart. She was pretty well armed with knowledge that would give her a hold on Sandry, in case she was forced to use it, but here, she believed, would be proof positive, the actual written word that she might hold before his eyes in some hard event of the future.

With strong excitement she slit the envelope, drew out the sheet and began to read. Faster and faster came her hot breath, redder and redder grew her cheeks, while triumph sparkled in her eyes. She moved slightly on her slippery feet, a little motion of satisfaction that set her garments whispering—as when the tiger, scenting its prey, squirms before the leap.

Near-Sightedness.

Many people believe that a child may be born near-sighted, but this is not the case. Near-sightedness always results from strain, and in the great majority of cases can be prevented, or at least kept down to low degrees.

At peace!" he was thinking wildly. "At peace and content!" while before him his strained eyes came the thin page from Sletz' old Bible with its cry "Oh, Absalom! My son, my son!" wailed for the boy who fell from grace.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Proof at Last.

The summer was upon the hills with a vengeance.

"Mighty unusual," said Ma Daily, "this here heat. Hottest it's been for many a year. 'It's agoin' to be a mighty dry season an' it's a-comin' early."

Which prophecy seemed due to be fulfilled. A blue heat haze lay deep in the valleys, hung amid the hills. The deep floor of pine needles in the big woods was already dry as powder, and it was only late July. The camp was humming ahead with the work. They had exceeded their expectations in getting out logs, sending out more than they had planned.

Miss Ordway, still mistress of the little south room, worked feverishly at the new story of the timberlands. A bit of her brightness, some of her painstaking cheerfulness, was gone with the summer's heat. She had thought that long before this she would have won, that the engagement she had so daringly announced would be a fact. She could not understand his holding out against her.

Sandry had made many trips to Salem, consulting with the lawyer he had summoned from the East, who was turning heaven and earth in an effort to prove what Sandry knew to be true of Hampton, but it was unavailing. The young commissioner at Salem was "on to his job" and the weeks flew by with not one raveled end to the ball of fraud and deception and criminal intrigue which lay snug in the doctor's records of the state land office. Miss Ordway had dropped her ailing for the timber claim and the young commissioner was uneasily searching his offices for the two letters and a missing account book. He did not faintly suspect that the last time he had seen them was during the visit to Salem of the charming new acquisition to the "ring." Married Life on $80 a Month

"Well, that poor little Molly Suter is quite sick," Olive said down, looking very sober and thoughtful. "Carolyn says he is afraid it will be a run of fever."

"Poor little thing. She had all she could stand up under before," she paused with her hand to her forehead to discuss the situation. "What will they do?"

"It is beyond me," said Olive gloomily. "Her husband is with her now. If he came over this morning, to the phone, the office that she was too sick to leave."

"When was she taken sick?" asked Nell absently, looking at a chair near where she stood.

"They called the doctor about nine o'clock last night. She had a high temperature then. If only they were not in such financial straits they could get a nurse from Kansas City, but it is out of the question at this time," Olive leaned her chin on her hand. "Mr. Suter asked if we knew if anyone he could get to take care of her and we could think of no one."

"There was a woman who came and took care of me till Mother Mary could get here when I was so sick over a year ago. They might get her. I'll put on my hat and coat and go over there, till if you want me to," volunteered Nell.

"Good! Come on," Olive rose as she spoke. "Where is Hal?"

Household Hints

Quince and Cranberry Jelly.—One pound quinces and one pound cranberries. Take quinces through food-grinder or cut into small pieces, add cranberries, cover with water and cook until tender. Put in jelly bag and let drip over night. In the morning take a cup of sugar to each cup of juice and let boil fifteen minutes. Meanwhile wash and cut up a couple of apples. Take what is left in the bag, push all through a soap-strainer, apples included, put back on stove with sugar and you will have a nice appetizing jelly.

Orange in Grape Jelly.—A few slices of orange or lemon boiled in grape juice, when making jelly, will improve both the flavor and color.

THE TABLE.

Flank Steak Braised with Vegetables.—Score a flank steak, dredge well with flour, sprinkle with dots of butter and place in oblong baking pan. Over the place a thin layer of thinly sliced potatoes, then a layer of thinly sliced onions; over the whole pour two cups stewed tomatoes. Cover lightly and place in oven. Cook slowly $\frac{1}{2}$ or three hours. Half hour before meat is done remove cover, add a layer of boiled rice (if necessary, more moistening) and cook uncovered the remaining time. In serving, carefully transfer the steak to a platter, preserving the contour of the various layers. Slice down through the layers as through a loaf.

Chili Con Carne (materials required for two glasses, one-half pound chili or red kidney beans (one can), one-half pound hamburger steak, one tablespoon butter (or a little tried out, if liked), juice of one lemon, one onion (strained), salt, pepper, sugar, paprika to taste. Soak beans over night in two quarts cold water. Next morning boil in fresh water until nearly soft. Drain beans, melt butter or suet in spider, add onion, butter or suet in spider, add onion, allow to get very brown and stir all the time so each little bit of meat is separate. Now put meat and "fry" in oil, add beans, onion, tomato, tomato juice and seasoning; simmer very slowly over low fire or in oven, if in use. Allow tomato juice to boil away until there remains a nice, thick gravy on the beans and meat. About two hours' slow cooking is right. Serve with bread and baked apples with this. Nothing else is needed to make a good meal, with home-made bread and coffee or tea to drink.

Larded Rabbit.—Soak in clear water over night, wipe dry. Put in holes in thick parts and stuff with well peppered diced bacon. Put large piece of butter in deep frying pan. Brown rabbit quickly on all sides; then put in sufficient water to almost cover and let simmer down. Lift rabbit and make gravy, as with steak. A few pieces of bacon may be added to the gravy while simmering.

Corn Pone.—Two cups corn meal, one cup wheat flour, one-half cup sugar, one-half teaspoon soda, two teaspoons baking powder, two eggs, salt, two cups water, butter, one egg melted in pan and poured into batter last. Sift dry ingredients, add eggs, water, beat, pour in pan, bake twenty minutes.

Fudge.—Something new for afternoon tea. Make a soft fudge, one cup light brown sugar, one cup confectioners' sugar, one-half square chocolate, one-half cup milk, butter size of walnut. Cook and stir until it thickens and sugars. Spread on thin slices of hot buttered toast. Easy to prepare; delicious.

New Party Cake.—Cream one-half cup butter with one cup granulated sugar. Beat in one cup milk and three cups pastry flour sifted with three teaspoons baking powder. Add one teaspoon vanilla and carefully fold in whites of three eggs. Bake in layers. Just as soon as cake is taken from oven, lay marshmallows out in quarters over each layer. When cake is cool and marshmallows softened, cover with the following filling: Beat half cup butter, add a cream, add two tablespoons cocoa dissolved in a little cold coffee. Flavor with vanilla and beat in $\frac{1}{4}$ cups of XXXX confectioners' sugar. Beat thoroughly. Add one-third cup broken walnut meats.

Things Worth Knowing.

Water in which potatoes have been boiled is the best thing with which to sponge and revive a silk dress.

HARE LIP AND CLEFT PALATE.

The pre-natal development of the face is completed by the union of several separate processes or projections. One from either side unites with the central process to form the upper lip and lip. When these side projections fail to unite completely with the central projection a cleft or space is left open, and this constitutes hare lip, or, if the cleft extends back far enough, cleft palate. Why the union sometimes fails we do not know. The only wonder is that it most always does develop perfectly.

A hare lip or cleft palate may be single or double. That is to say the cleft may be upon one side only, or upon both sides. In the lip the cleft occurs at the line represented by the cleavage which runs down from the nostril to the vermilion border on either side. This line, or pair of lines, is produced by the union of the three projections or processes alluded to above.

Authorities differ as to the time when operation is best for hare lip and cleft palate. Hare lip alone is generally best operated on during the first few weeks of life, as soon as the baby is apparently started upon a healthy career. At one or two months of age the tissues are still soft and elastic, and healing is active. Furthermore, at this age, sensation is so dull and undeveloped that no anesthetic, or scarcely none, is necessary.

If there is a cleft in the palate the operation is a formidable one and generally it is well to wait until the child is a few years old, unless the physician deems the cleft a menace to life.

The simple repair of a hare lip is successful in something like three out of five cases when performed during the first few months. If union fails, if healing does not occur, of course that is disappointing, but not a calamity, for the operation can be repeated later and with better prospects perhaps. At any rate the deformity is so hideous that no effort or repeated effort should be spared in the endeavor to correct it. There is no excuse in allowing a child to grow up with a hare lip or cleft palate untreated these days.

GENIUS OR SOMETHING BETTER.

We fell to talking about genius the other night.

Before we were through, the big lump that comes into my throat when I'm on the verge of crying, not because I'm sad, but because I'm thrilled by a glimpse of the deep realities of life, had arrived.

This is the way the subject came up. Someone spoke of a woman who married several years ago a young man with considerable money and a tendency to fast living. She herself had been brought up in a good deal of luxury, but her family had lost their means, and she was suspected of marrying for money. About a year ago he lost every cent and had to take a minor position at a small salary. Someone asked how his wife was taking it, and Molly, the little stenographer, said: "She's wonderful. She does all her own work, takes entire care of her two children, makes all their clothes and hers. Her home always looks lovely and their clothes are just as smart and dainty as those she used to buy in the shops. And more than that, she has helped her husband to give up his fast habits and, oh, they do seem so happy together!"

Molly Ends in an Exclamation Point.

"That," said the lady-who-always-knows-something, as Molly ended in an exclamation point, "is what I call genius!"

"Amen," said the cynic.

"Genius?" repeated the Author's wife in rather supercilious interrogation.

"It genius is 'an infinita capacity for taking pains,' she most certainly has shown it," said the Author.

"If genius is the ability to create something beautiful," said the lady, "no one can have a better claim to it than she."

No Time for Self-Play.

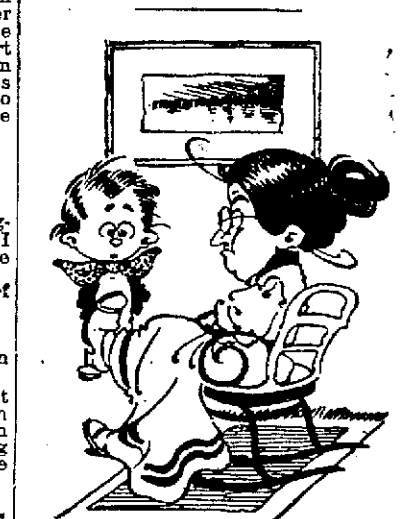

"Or than Gertrude," said Molly, naming another woman whom we all know. She has three babies, and her husband makes about twenty dollars a week. Her home is one of the pleasantest and happiest I was ever in, her children are always neatly and prettily dressed, and she is giving them a bringing up that cannot fail to make them an asset to the community. She never owes a cent, and I have never heard her utter a word of complaint or complaint.

"Don't forget Mrs. Dale," put in the Author.

"I should say not!" said Molly. Mrs. Dale is a widow. She was left with three children under seven, and a heavily mortgaged house. She immediately began to take boarders. She is a college woman and although she has to do up her clubs and everything of that sort, she brought her broad viewpoint into her family circle instead of giving it up, and made her table popular, not only because of the excellent food served there, but because of the delightful conversation which she stimulates. In this atmosphere of culture and self-help the children are blossoming forth, the girls into the sweetest-looking, sweetest-mannered girls in the neighborhood, the boys into a studious and yet manly youth. Every time I see them on the street, I think, with a thrill in my heart, "She has her reward."

If this is not genius, this wrestling a beautiful and happy life out of hardships and deprivations, and economies and commonplaces, this passing on the living torch with its flame kept bright and clear, then it's something better than genius, that's all.

HE KNEW.

Bobbie—You're my grandma, aren't you?

Grandma—Yes, Bobby. I'm your grandma on your father's side.

Bobbie—Well, you're on the wrong side; you'll find that out!

M. J. CLEARY TAKES BRIDE ON TUESDAY

State Insurance Commissioner Will Wed Miss Bonnie Blanchard of Blanchardville.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Madison, Wis., Nov. 15.—The quiet little village of Hollandale in Iowa county will be the scene of a pretty wedding tomorrow morning, when Miss Bonnie Blanchard of Blanchardville is married to Insurance Commissioner M. J. Cleary. The ceremony will be performed in St. Mary's Catholic church by the Rev. Father F. J. Carries.

Miss Blanchard, descendant of the pioneer founder of the village which bears his name, located ten miles south of the wedding scene tomorrow morning. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Blanchard. She graduated from Milwaukee Downer College in 1912.

Mr. Cleary was born in the village of Moscow, Lafayette county, in 1877, and graduated from the college of law at the University of Wisconsin in 1901. Since that time he has been engaged in the practice of law at Blanchardville. He served in the assembly in 1908, was later defeated in the elective campaign for the office of commissioner of insurance, but when Gov. Philipp was elected he appointed Mr. Cleary as his confidential legal advisor and claim agent. Later, when the term of Herman L. Ekern expired as commissioner of insurance, Mr. Cleary was appointed to the position. Only a two days' wedding trip will be taken at present.

how to act in the event of a raid by hostile aeroplanes, has been adopted in all the public schools of Baden, Alsace and Rhenish Prussia.

Travelers from Germany state that in both Baden and Alsace a number of children were recently severely injured in the scramble to leave the school buildings during the recent raids. At Offenburg, the annual general council of mayors of Baden cities had just opened its session in the city hall when the fire alarms and sirens announced the approach of a squadron of French airmen. The mayors adjourned to the coal cellars of the building until the danger was over.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, In Care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl fifteen years old, and in my last year at grammar school. I have sisters, one of whom is one year my senior. Every morning after breakfast or any time during the day she makes some excuse to get out doors so that she will not have to help me. I am very cross at my mother and then she says she can't not to say, I feel as though I don't want to do anything. I know my sister is younger than I am, but it makes me angry just the same when she does not try to help. When my mother tells me to do things I feel like answering her back. I do not go out at night and hate to go to bed. If you refuse to let conditions ruin your disposition you will turn out a happier and more capable woman than your sister. While they are playing you are learning to do things that will be of use to you all your life. Work cheerfully and without complaint for a selfish reason if no other. Hard thoughts make a hard disagreeable face, while sunny, tolerant thoughts make the face sweet and lovable. If you are kind and gentle to your mother she may not ask you to do so much work.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I met a boy here in this city two years ago. This boy showed great interest in me and I did not mind him. Before the boy left the next morning he came up to my house to see me. When he left he wrote me letters every week. Last year he came down to see me and we had a good time. When this boy left he did not write until two weeks later. In his letter he excused himself by saying that he was busy. In return I did not answer until about three weeks later, and made no excuse. He did not answer this letter and I did not write any more. Later I wrote him a card and said only: "Are you a good guesser?" He wrote back and asked if he was right. Then I decided sending the card. Later he sent me a New Year's card and I answered it. Since then I've heard nothing. I want to correspond with this boy again because I like him better than anyone else. Can you tell me how I can get him to correspond with me?

The boy will write if he wants to. There is nothing you can do to make him.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) My face, when I got over the measles, was left with a humor. It has a scaly breaking out. I have tried using carbolic soap, but found it does no good. Can you tell me what to do?
